Salar de Chalviri

A photograph of a geothermal field. In the foreground, there are several small, dark, circular pools of water surrounded by light-colored, mineral-rich soil. A large, dark, irregularly shaped rock formation is prominent in the center. In the background, there are more pools and some small, dome-shaped mounds of earth. The overall scene is arid and rocky.

Laguna colorada

A wide-angle landscape photograph of Laguna Colorada. In the foreground, there's a grassy, slightly elevated bank with some low-lying vegetation. The middle ground is dominated by a large, calm body of water with a reddish-brown hue. Numerous pink flamingos are scattered throughout the water, some standing and others swimming. In the background, a large, dark, conical volcano rises against a clear blue sky. Other smaller hills are visible to the right of the main volcano.

A scenic landscape photograph of Laguna Cañapa. In the foreground, there is a body of water with several pink flamingos wading. The water reflects the surrounding environment. In the background, there are large, rugged mountains with reddish-brown slopes and some snow-capped peaks under a clear blue sky. A thin white line, likely a salt flat, separates the lake from the mountains.

Bandera

A close-up photograph of a large, columnar cactus, likely a species of cholla or similar. The cactus has a green, segmented body covered in numerous long, thin, light-brown spines. A large, vertical, irregular wound is visible on the central part of the cactus, exposing a light-colored, fibrous interior. The wound appears to be a deep cut or a large hole. The background is a dry, rocky landscape with some sparse vegetation.
